3 MYSTERIOUS WOMEN HAUNT SCULLY TRIAL

Intimates Acid Was Knocked From Defendant's Hand as She Was About to Drink It, and Spilled on Glover.

Promptly at 10 o'clock this morning Judge Ellsworth took his place upon the bench in Department Five and called the case of the People vs. Olive Scully. The attorneys waived a jury trial. It being obvious that all were in their places, W. J. McCaffrey was then recalled by the defense and his cross-examination continued by Judge Allen for Miss Scully.

SAYS WOMAN WAS SOBER.
The prisoner seems to have, in a measure, recovered her equanimity. She sits within a few feet of the witness stand and watches McCaffrey closely. The latter seldom faces her, though once or twice a glance from one to the other has denoted previous acquaintanceship. McCaffrey is calm and untroubled and seldom in his story that Miss Scully was sober at the time of the tragedy.

MYSTERIOUS WOMEN.
Three mysterious women, who have been in daily attendance on the trial since the beginning of the jury examination, are exciting some considerable curiosity and conjecture as to their purpose. Two of the women are past middle age, the other being between 30 and 35 years. They follow the proceedings closely, laughing immoderately when the witnesses are driven to a corner or when they score a point on the attorneys. A rumor is abroad that they are held in reserve by one side or the other and may be called upon to give some startling information before the close of the trial. Judge Allen asked McCaffrey: "Did you not, in answer to a question put by Mr. Brown before the stand, say that both Glover and Miss Scully were under the influence of liquor?" "Perhaps, I did."

SAW HER DRINK CLARET.
"Did you not say you 'saw her drink

two-thirds of a glass of claret?"

"Yes, but I meant two-thirds of the contents of the glass, whatever that might have been."

"Why didn't you so state to the grand jury?"

"I have no stereotyped way of speaking," said McCaffrey, boldly. "I answered the question to the best of my ability, as I am doing now."

"Did you not say to the grand jury that you saw Miss Scully step backwards when about to throw the glass?"

"I thought from the movement of her body that she had stepped back."

"Now you are not sure."

"I could not see her feet from where I was sitting."

STORY UNSHAKEN.
It is the evident intention of the defense to create in the minds of the jury an impression that McCaffrey's testimony is tinged up. McCaffrey is an unwilling victim of the grilling to which he is being subjected. Under such attack to break down a point in his testimony he is obliged to stand on his feet. He is not, however, shaken in any of his fundamental respects.

Judge Allen—Did you not have some friends at the house for dinner that day?

McCaffrey—Yes, sir, two friends.

Allen—Did you not send for four bottles of beer to the Nevada Cafe?

McCaffrey—No, I did not send for it. It was in the house.

Allen—Did you and your friends drink all of that?

McCaffrey—I don't remember.

Allen—Didn't you testify yesterday that you had drunk nothing but claret?

McCaffrey—I didn't think one glass of beer made any difference.

TALBOT TELLS MORE OF HIS WIFE'S TEMPER

Millionaire on the Stand Continues Tale of Marital Woes.

(SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—With tears in his eyes, controlling himself with great effort, and with difficulty checking the sobs which chokingly rose in his throat, William H. Talbot told in Judge Sewell's court this morning how he had fought for years to save the children from notoriety, how he thought that this was the only thing that he had to live for, and how he had put up with everything from his wife, and was willing to do nearly everything to avoid divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Talbot was late in arriving in the courtroom. It was not until fifteen minutes of the proceedings had gone by that she entered alone and took a seat beside Attorney J. J. Barrett. Her arrival caused a stir. She was magnificently attired in a dark brown velvet suit with a beautifully trimmed picture hat of the same hue.

BETRAYED NO EMOTION.

During the entire proceedings she sat with her eyes intent upon her husband, paying close attention to the proceedings and frequently whispering to her counsel. She betrayed no emotion whatsoever, although a slight nervousness was noticed when Mr. Talbot broke down and told of his efforts to prevent divorce proceedings.

The feeling of the defendant toward her husband was clearly brought out when Mr. Talbot testified that the only

W. E. DARGIE HANDS OUT HOT SHOT TO SPRECKELS' ATTORNEYS

"We took the ground that every man who violated law should be punished and that any millionaire should not be allowed to take possession of the District Attorney's office," said the editor.

Telling freely and frankly all details connected with THE TRIBUNE, which Attorney Wheeler sought to learn, William E. Dargie, president of THE TRIBUNE PUBLISHING COMPANY, this morning resumed the giving of his deposition in the libel suit for $100,000 brought by the First National Bank of San Francisco. Under oath Mr. Dargie testified that THE TRIBUNE's policy was to sustain the graft prosecution when the prosecution was in the right and to criticize it when in the wrong. This statement was made by Mr. Dargie, replying to questions of Wheeler, representing the First National Bank, who sought to show that the policy of THE TRIBUNE was hostile to the graft prosecution.

The deposition was taken before Court Commissioner Clarence Crowell in his office in the Union Savings Bank building. Mr. Dargie was represented by Attorney M. C. Chapman. Attorney George Reed assisted Mr. Chapman.

Attorney Charles Wheeler interrogated the witness and he was assisted by Reuben H. Lloyd.

Questions which Attorney Chapman had directed Mr. Dargie not to answer during the taking of the first portion of the deposition, but which Judge Ogden directed should be answered were gone over by Wheeler.

SEEKS ONLY TO TELL TRUTH IN ALL CASES.

These questions related to the attitude of THE TRIBUNE towards the graft prosecution and Rudolph Spreckels. Wheeler secured but little satisfaction from the answers, which were comprehensive and clear and showed that THE TRIBUNE sought only the truth in all matters.

Mr. Dargie also stated that the policy of the paper was that all criminals should be treated alike.

Wheeler delved into the thoughts and beliefs of the witness regarding Rudolph Spreckels and the graft prosecution, but Mr. Dargie's answers were such that he was frequently disconcerted. Wheeler was frequently disconcerted. The examination began shortly after 11 o'clock, with Wheeler's questions.

Here is the testimony as it was taken this morning:

Mr. Wheeler—The Court having ruled upon questions 41 to 43, both inclusive, I now proceed to repeat the said question to the witness and answers thereto. "Mr. Dargie—Question 41. I will call your attention to the editorial page of the paper of May 6, 1907, the editorial headed 'The Tribune Latest Achievements.' The examination published in that issue of your paper on that date?"

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant and incompetent, and not the best evidence. A.—That is an editorial which appeared in THE TRIBUNE of May 6th.

Mr. Wheeler—I would like to be understood as again offering the portion of the edition of the paper of May 6th, 1907, in evidence, and ask counsel to consider that since it has already been read in the record, that is again offered and read in the record at this time.

Mr. Chapman—Was it read in full, Mr. Wheeler?

Mr. Wheeler—Yes, sir.

Mr. Chapman—I make the same objection as that last stated. It is immaterial, and irrelevant and incompetent.

Mr. Wheeler—Question 42. Mr. Dargie, did a correspondent of your paper on or about the 5th or 6th day of May, call upon Mr. Patrick Calhoun in San Francisco?

Mr. Dargie—Yes, sir.

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant. A.—I couldn't state that positively without looking at the paper of that date, but I presume that if THE TRIBUNE states that such was the case that is the fact.

Mr. Chapman—I ask that the presumption of the witness be stricken out as not responsive to the question. You know or you don't know. If you don't see him go there, you don't know. A.—I believe that he went there.

Mr. Chapman—I ask that that answer be stricken out as not responsive.

Mr. Wheeler—In this connection I call your attention to an article appearing in the issue which you have heretofore identified as the issue of Monday, May 6, 1907, headed 'Calhoun says conspiracy instigated by Spreckels and other rivals and enemies,' and I call your attention in said article to the following language: 'President Calhoun of the United Railroad made this very important and exclusive statement this afternoon to a TRIBUNE correspondent who made a special trip to his home in Webster street, San Francisco, etc.' A.—What is the question, Mr. Wheeler?

Mr. Wheeler—The question is, whether or not having looked at that article you can now say whether or not a representative of THE TRIBUNE did go to the house of Mr. Calhoun on or about the date of May 6, San Francisco. Mr. Calhoun's house in San Francisco.

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as irrelevant and immaterial and incompetent. A.—I presume the reporter did, from the fact that it appears in THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Wheeler—You don't know it of your own knowledge?

Mr. Chapman—I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive, that is, the prior answer.

DOES NOT KNOW OF OWN KNOWLEDGE.
Mr. Wheeler—You don't know it of your own knowledge? A.—I didn't see him go there; I didn't detail him to go there.

Q.—Did a reporter of THE TRIBUNE represent that he had been to Mr. Calhoun's house and had this interview with Mr. Calhoun?

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as calling for hearsay and as incompetent and irrelevant and immaterial, and not as the best evidence.

A.—My other answer covers that fully. I presume a reporter went there, but I don't know it of my own knowledge. I didn't see him and didn't detail him and he didn't report to me that he had been there.

Mr. Chapman—I move to strike out the answer as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Wheeler—How did the article headed 'Calhoun says conspiracy instigated by Spreckels and other rivals and enemies' appearing in the issue of THE TRIBUNE of May 6, 1907, come into the possession of THE TRIBUNE?

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.

A.—I presume it came through the regular channel.

Mr. Chapman—I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Wheeler—Don't you know, Mr. Dargie, where it came from?

A.—I don't know of my own knowledge where it came from.

Q.—Did you see the article before it was published?

A.—I did not, sir.

Q.—Did you know it was going to be published before it was published?

A.—I didn't know it was going to be published. I didn't see the article until after its publication.

Q.—Did you make any inquiry as to the source of the article before you published it?

Mr. Chapman—Objected to as immaterial.

A.—I never was consulted about the article. I didn't know it was going to be published until after it was published.

Mr. Wheeler—Who got the article, if you know?

A.—I think Mr. Herrick was the reporter of THE TRIBUNE who interviewed Mr. Calhoun and got the article. That is, I am so informed.

Mr. Chapman—I ask that the answer that Mr. Herrick interviewed Mr. Calhoun and got the article be stricken out as hearsay, the witness having answered he is so informed. Object to it as immaterial and incompetent.

Mr. Wheeler—What is the name of Mr. Herrick personally saw Mr. Calhoun?

A.—Only by hearsay.

BLACKMAILERS WERE CAUGHT

Threaten to Dynamite Home of Rich Man.

LEAD, S. D., Oct. 16.—An attempt to extort $20,000 from J. Grier, manager of the Homestake gold mine, under threat of dynamiting his home unless the money was placed in a designated place, was frustrated last night by the arrest of the alleged blackmailers. Mrs. Anna Majas, Chris Majas, her husband, and Matt Zimbola were arrested by the police as guilty parties. Grier received an anonymous letter demanding $20,000, the threat being made that Grier's home would be dynamited unless the money was put in an envelope and placed at a certain place. He reported to the police and a decoy letter was left as directed. Mrs. Majas was arrested by concealed policemen as she took the letter. Her husband and Zimbola were later taken into custody.

TROLLEY Car Loaded With Passengers Goes UPSETS

Several Were Hurt; Some May Die

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 16.—One man was killed, six persons were dangerously and probably twenty-five others slightly hurt today when an Elberon avenue car crowded with passengers, jumped the track and went over a twenty-five foot embankment at Mount Hope, in the western end of the city. Attorney Harry H. Baush was taken from the wreckage badly injured and died before he could be taken to the hospital. It is feared that some of the injured may also die. The Elberon avenue line skirts the southern section of Price Hill, having a steep grade around Mount Hope. The car was coming down this grade, the motorman lost control of the car which jumped the track soon after the wreckage, apparently striking a back-log.

THOSE INJURED.

SEVERE WOUNDS, shoulder and arm, going clear across the street and over the bank.

It landed upside down at the foot, the heavy trucks crashing through the car, a number of those most seriously hurt being caught inside. Only three or four of the passengers jumped before the loaded car went over the brink and nearly every one on board was more or less seriously hurt.

THE TRIBUNE sought only the truth in all matters.

OWNER DIES

Jesse Holladay, Who Operated Early Day "Pony Express," Passes Away.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Jesse Holladay, 82 years old, a pioneer of California, but in his latter years a resident of Chicago, died yesterday at the Lexington hotel.

He was associated with his brother, Benjamin, in the operation of the "Pony Express," which was for many years the only means of carrying the mails across the Western plains. They also were the owners of a stage coach line which, prior to the advent of the railroads, furnished practically the only means of transit to the Far West.

OWNED STEAMSHIP LINE.

Holladay and his brother were important factors in the development of California. For many years they owned a steamship line, plying between San Francisco and Honolulu. Jesse Holladay invested largely in Chicago real estate. His wife, who died a year ago, was a daughter of Colonel George W. Ewing of Indiana, who was associated as a partner with the original John Jacob Astor in fur trading. Mr. Holladay leaves one son, Benjamin Holladay, and three daughters.

PET MAGILL'S MOTHER IS CALLED AS WITNESS

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 16.—Mrs. Rosa Graham, mother of Mrs. Fay E. Graham Magill, went on the witness stand this morning in the trial of Fred and Fay E. Graham Magill, charged with the death of Mrs. Pet Magill, the first wife of Magill. Mrs. Graham testified that her daughter, Mrs. Magill, had always been like a sister to Mrs. Pet Magill and their relations had always been of the most cordial character.

She said that Mrs. Magill had made Fay promise that in case anything happened to her, Fay would take care of Marguerite Magill, Mrs. Magill's daughter who was Fay's child. Fay had so promised and the night of Mrs. Magill's death, Fay, having returned home from the Magill's house at 10:30 P. M., Marguerite called Fay up by telephone and said: "Mama wants me to tell you not to forget your promise."

Editor TRIBUNE: When P. H. McCarthy, the general president of the State Building Trades Council of California and the president of the Building Trades Council of San Francisco, was chosen as the standard-bearer and given the nomination for Mayor by the Union Labor convention, his opponents and the enemies of organized labor in general felt somewhat elated because Tom Engen and his fourteen followers bolted the convention.

The ex-chairman of the San Francisco Union Labor party county committee, who, by the way, has a prehistoric record as a Buckley lamb, announced that he was going to support Ryan for Mayor as against P. H. McCarthy, the nominee of the regular Union Labor party.

It was also made known, with great deliberation and care, that Mike Casey of the Brotherhood of Teamsters was going to throw his support to Dr. Taylor, who was put up by "Whispering" Gavin McNab and given the Democratic nomination as an emergency candidate.

McNab, who has been denominated the "friend of the scab," is perhaps the most shrewd and astute politician in the State of California, but ever since the great teamsters' strike in 1901 the Scotchman has been playing a losing game. Between the San Francisco primaries and the time of the nominating conventions the erstwhile San Francisco Democratic boss was busy playing three ends against the middle. He flirted with the Union Labor party and he wooed and won the Republican reformers and performers—and after all he lost.

Nobody can accuse the "whispering" one of being modest. He always asks for the whole show, and is satisfied with taking as little as he can get. He got Dr. Dodge on the Ryan ticket, but Union nominations two years ago proved to be of very little avail, and according to all indications and signs the hybrid candidates in San Francisco's municipal election will have a still more difficult row to hoe on the coming 5th day of November.

The supposed defections in the ranks of Union Labor, which was hailed so joyously by Spreckels, Mike De Young, Phelan, Magee and McNab have already proved to be a phantom spook fostered by a few hungry job chasers who masquerade in union garments, nourished and tenderly cared for by the capitalistic click which desires to rehabilitate some of their lost fortunes through a reduction of the building mechanics' and laborers' wages.

Whatever hopes the few millionaires, who believe they are entitled to rule San Francisco, may have had, were rudely shattered at the ratification meeting of the Union Labor party in Walton's Pavilion, Wednesday, October 9, 1907.

The wealthy Pharisees sat up and took notice on Thursday morning, the 10th, and as the Union Labor meetings are being held and addressed by P. H. McCarthy, the Union Labor nominee for Mayor, each night, a cold shiver runs down the spine of the opposition.

As one so-called "Good Government" league said the other day: "McCarthy is growing, and if we do not do something pretty quick he will slip in between."

"Well, the good gentlemen in question would not have made use of the remark if he had known P. H. McCarthy for as long a period of time and as well as the underground."

P. H. McCarthy was fully grown several decades ago. He was one of the seven organizers of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1884; together with such men as P. J. Maguire, the gifted organizer of the American Federation of Labor.

For the past twelve years McCarthy has occupied the position as President of the Building Trades Council of San Francisco, the parent organization of all the local Building Trades Councils in California. His life among us is an open book. His achievements and singular executive abilities are known to all well informed trades unionists not only in this State, but in every other State in the Union.

P. H. McCarthy has always held the office of general president of the State Building Trades Council of California ever since that organization was formed in 1901. Through his indomitable energy and wise administration of these central bodies of building artisans, the members engaged in the building business, both in San Francisco and in other counties in this State, have secured an maintained a wage rate and an eight hour day which is paramount to that enjoyed by any artisan the world over.

Through his conservative policy, coupled by diplomatic tact and supported by rugged honesty, P. H. McCarthy has not only won the respect but the friendship and admiration of all the fair and leading contractors, artisans and owners that he has come in contact with.

That P. H. McCarthy will be elected the next Mayor of San Francisco, no one doubts who knows the man, and who understands the first principles of the trades union movement. He is the man of the hour, the one man above all others who, if placed in the Mayor's chair, can bring San Francisco to her feet. The stricken city needs a chief executive a man of courage and determination, one who can preserve peace, maintain the law, establish the necessary confidence and bring her the needed progress and prosperity.

Such a man is P. H. McCarthy. If elected Mayor, which he will be, on the fifth day of November, he will bring to the municipal administration of San Francisco the same amount of business acumen, skill, energy and loyalty that has characterized his government of the local Building Trades Council of San Francisco and the State Building Trades Council of California.

His election will not only be a triumph to San Francisco but it will be hailed as a victory for organized labor and the wage-workers throughout the nation.

J. B. ROWEN,
First Vice-President State Building Trades Council.

Charles Newman, proprietor of the College Inn on Broadway, made the following statement yesterday to a TRIBUNE reporter:

"I desire to make a statement in regard to the article published in THE TRIBUNE wherein it is said that I told a reporter that I was to be manager of the new Bankers' Hotel. In the first place I wish to state that I never made any such definite statement regarding it. The circumstances surrounding the matter are as follows:

"Quite a long time ago William G. Heenshaw, director of the Oakland Hotel Company, and Walter Matthews and the contracting architect were in my cafe. Mr. Heenshaw had come back from New York. A compliment was paid to me by Mr. Heenshaw, the New York architect—he said to Mr. Heenshaw, while the latter was in New York that the director of the Oakland Hotel Company need not look abroad for a manager because they had a good one in their own city, referring to me. He stated that about twenty-two years ago I was manager of the Richelle Hotel in Chicago, one of the best in the country. Mr. Heenshaw was stockholder in that company, and I made good money on his investment. Mr. Heenshaw said Mr. Heenshaw had complimented me highly on my management of that hotel, and said I was an efficient and competent hotel manager."

PROUD OF COMPLIMENT.
"I considered this a great compliment, counting as it did in such an indirect way, for I had not heard of Mr. Heenshaw for many years. In fact I never knew he was the same Mr. Heenshaw who was connected with the Richelle Hotel. I discussed the new hotel with Mr. Matthews and Mr. Heenshaw and looked at the plans. I have been a hotel man all my life and have conducted some of the best in the country, with large profit to the owners."

"When the San Francisco fire came, I employed five hundred men and had seven businesses, and lost half a million in three days. I came to Oakland to grow up with the city, and I think I have made good. The Oakland public have been good to me. I do not deny that I am a candidate to be manager of the Bankers' Hotel. I shall esteem it a great honor to get the position, and I am sure that I could make good, and secure for their investors a large return on their money, but I desire to say, however, that I have never made the statement that I had been appointed, or that I had a clinch on the appointment of manager."

WANTS THE POSITION.
"I would like to secure the appointment, and I am going to do my best to get the position, for I know that a big hotel properly conducted in this great city will be a wonderful success, both financially and socially. After my many years of experience throughout the country, and during the late years around the bay, I feel confident I could run the hotel better than any person brought from the East."

"I desire to set myself right before the public, and it is for this reason I have made this statement."

Present Occupant's Term Expires in 1909 and Prosecutor May Jump Into Fight for Toga.

(FROM SAN FRANCISCO EX-AMINER.)

The story goes in Oregon that Francis J. Heney aims to succeed George C. Perkins as United States Senator from California. He is quoted as having said on his last visit to Portland:

"There is only one position in the political world that I would care to have, and that is the United States Senatorship from California."

The man to whom the great prosecutor is supposed to have thus expressed himself is described as one of Heney's closest friends, and this gentleman then is quoted as amplifying Heney's statement as follows:

"It is not the Governorship that Heney is after, but Perkins' seat in the Senate. Perkins' term expires in 1909, and if conditions are right at that time Heney will jump into the fight for the place."

The declaration has caused the friends of Perkins to take notice. They had been watching Metcalf's moves and Pardee's moves before that, but Heney is a new one on them.

ALWAYS A DEMOCRAT.

To be sure, Heney always has been a Democrat, but things are getting a good deal mixed in California politics, and it is recalled that Heney was re-elected with a great burst of enthusiasm at the meeting of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League in Oakland. There were vociferations that he was just the man for the next Governor of California.

But the Senatorial contest comes on before the Governorship battle, and if Heney was good enough for the league's candidate for Governor, why shouldn't he be good enough for the league's candidate for United States Senator?

There has been a notion among practical politicians that it was Rudolph Spreckels who was yearning for the Perkins' toga. They have been wondering who was "financing" the Lincoln-Roosevelt League. That organization continues to be active. It is going politics all the time, and this costs money. So the Herrin men have been speculating on where the money is coming from.

SPRECKELS BEHIND HIM.

They have figured it out that Spreckels must be the man and their conclusion from this premise was that Spreckels would ask the support of the league for United States Senator. Now, however, they are wondering if Spreckels is financing Heney's campaign.

In any event, with Spreckels and Heney poking around in the political nest, with Guy C. Earl suspected of putting out a little money and energy in favor of his friend, former Governor George C. Pardee, with Secretary of the Navy Victor H. Metcalf with the Buttrick fortune behind him, nursing an active ambition to sit in the United States Senate, and with State Senator Charles M. Belshaw, a millionaire, sending forward his advance couriers to get up a Belshaw boom for next year's battle, Uncle George C. Perkins has need of all his suavity and all his well-known powers of balance.

GRAND AVENUE HEIGHTS (BY THE PARKS)

If you have seen these things you cannot escape the conviction that Grand Avenue Heights (by the parks) will soon be the center of all Oakland's highest class residence district. Lots secured now at the very low starting-off prices will certainly increase greatly in value in the near future. Make reservations before Saturday.

You cannot afford to select a home site without seeing this property.

The great storm sewer is now being laid in Grand Avenue Boulevard, which will then be macadamized and sidewalked. All streets will be macadamized, sewer and cement sidewalks, curbs and gutters put in.

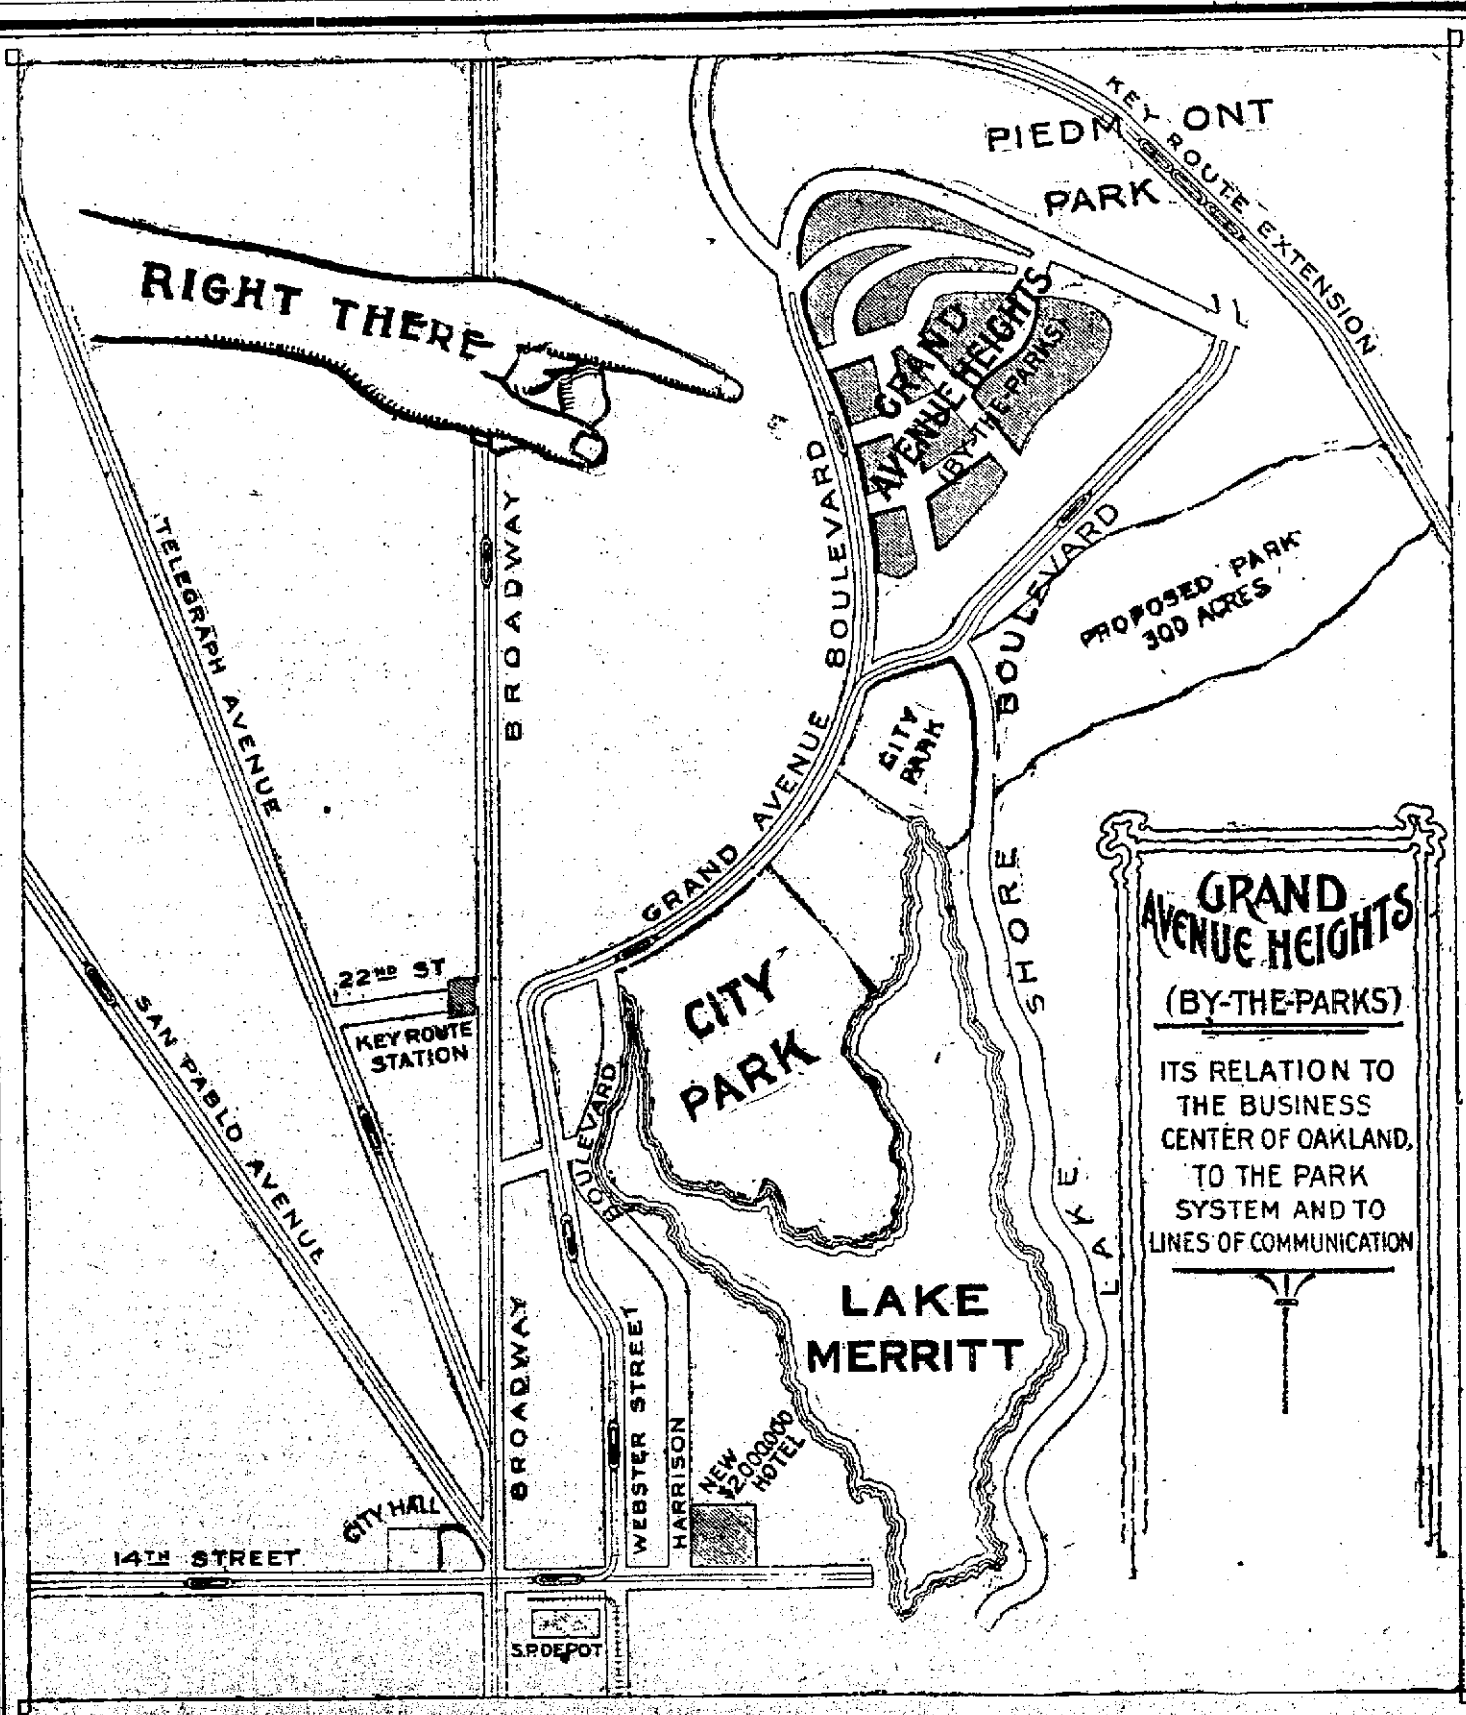

Saturday, October 19th
Will Be the Opening Day of Sale

Early buyers will secure advantages in location by immediate inspection. Automobiles run from our office every day.

Location of Powder Works.

The explosion of the Dupont Powder Works at Fontanet, Indiana, is, we believe, the most disastrous of its kind which has ever happened in this country. It was accompanied by a larger number of fatalities and minor casualties than any previous event recorded in the history of the manufacture of high explosives. The circumstances under which it occurred and its effects are of special interest to this State, for the reason that, outside of the works located in the Eastern States controlled by the Dupont Powder Company, California outranks all other States in the Union in the manufacture of high explosives. The industry is today as tight as any combine organized for the restraint of trade in the country, and the California manufacturers under its regulations supply the consumers of the Pacific States and Territories.

But that is a subject not germane to that at present under consideration. The disastrous explosion at Fontanet rivets public attention on the location of powder works and the necessity for their absolute isolation, if not voluntarily by compulsory legislation.

The manufacturer of high explosives is, of course, a modern necessity. On the latter account it cannot be prohibited, nor is its prohibition desirable. The industry is so interwoven with other interests of the greatest magnitude and most vital importance that they are inseparable, and it must, therefore, be fostered. Its dangerous character makes it essential, however, that it should be placed under the strictest restraint and so isolated that it shall be the minimum of a menace to the public.

The Dupont Powder Works at Fontanet were evidently surrounded by a considerable population, hence the big mortality and the long list of injured, amounting, according to telegraphic reports, to at least six hundred persons. The incident emphasizes the conclusion that the operation of such dangerous works and the location of magazines for the storage of high explosives should not be tolerated at any point where they are a possible menace to any community. The claims which the manufacturers of these explosives set up regarding their harmlessness under well defined conditions are unreliable. This has been frequently demonstrated in the experience of powder works in this State. It was punctuated at the Fontanet disaster. It has been repeatedly asserted, for example, that the explosion of these dangerous chemical products is impossible except through the combination of heat and concussion, and yet it has happened, time and again, in the history of the manufacture of high explosives in this State, which have occurred with unpleasant frequency, that each of these elements have been the independent agent of disaster. In the Fontanet disaster, heat alone is credited with causing the explosion of the magazines in which the powder was stored.

Originally, the powder companies in this State were all located in San Francisco. They were driven out of that city because the frequent explosions which occurred and the damage they wrought proved conclusively that they were a standing menace to life and property. They removed, consequently, to a secluded quarter of Santa Cruz county and to what were then isolated points along the eastern shore of San Francisco and San Pablo bays. But the powder works on this side of the bay are all located near the main railroad lines, and in some cases, adjacent to populous communities which have grown up in later times. They are, therefore, now a menace to life and property in the latter and endanger travel on the former. Loaded passenger trains are imperiled because of the proximity of works of this character to the main tracks on which they run. At Fontanet a freight train standing on a siding was destroyed by the concussion. A town of 800 inhabitants was wiped out of existence. About 1200 persons in the neighborhood were made homeless. Could there be a stronger argument for the compulsory isolation of powder works everywhere so that populous communities shall not be put in jeopardy or travel by rail put in peril?

To Protect the Bay Cities.

When the Japanese, in the war with China, landed an army on an unfortified part of the Liaotung peninsula north of Port Arthur and attacked that stronghold in the rear and captured it, the achievement opened the eyes of United States army engineers to the vulnerability of San Francisco in the event of war. Up to that time they had followed the example of the German engineers who built the fortifications of Port Arthur for the Chinese government by making its approaches impregnable to attack from the sea. They concentrated their energies on the defenses controlling the Golden Gate.

Meantime the rear of the city was defenseless as was that of Port Arthur, and an enemy could have landed anywhere on the shore of the southern end of the peninsula and captured it without a single shot being fired from any of the batteries commanding the gate. It was then planned to erect forts on the bluffs south of the ocean beach whose guns should sweep the latter and cover the rear of the city.

The second capture of Port Arthur has evidently impressed the belief on the minds of the army engineers that the system of coast defenses must be extended much farther south in order to give adequate protection against invasion by an enemy. A special board of experts is now at work planning new defenses for the protection of the harbor and the cities built around its shores. Half Moon Bay is regarded as a strategic point which must be fortified. It will probably develop later that the line of coast defenses will have to be carried far enough south to prevent a landing at Monterey Bay before San Francisco will be considered really secure against attack by way of its land approaches, and that in all probably will be done finally.

California Refined Oil Exports.

The oil interests of California are growing annually in importance and the export abroad of the refined product is increasing at a great rate. The refineries began exporting practically in 1904. But the volume of refined oil sent abroad aggregated that year only 2,000,000 gallons, valued at $123,250. Last year the volume exported grew to 11,500,000 gallons, valued at $1,627,313. It is growing still more rapidly this year, for the record of the first six months shows that upwards of 31,000,000 gallons, worth $1,594,434, was shipped. It is probable that the record of 1907 will show that approximately 70,000,000 gallons of California refined oil will have been exported.

Many a young man is sorry he spoke after spending a day pricing furniture. Although the average girl thinks she is telling a fib when she says she can't sing, she isn't.

It's what you do today that counts—not what you are going to do tomorrow. When a woman takes up the physical culture she's anxious either to put on fat or take it off.

A man seldom thinks he is as bad as he is—or as good as his wife thinks he is. It's difficult for a woman to understand why it always rains shortly after she has had the front windows cleaned.

One of the hardest things to do is to let money when you just have to have it. There are two kinds of women—those whose clothes seem to have been made for them and those who seem to have been made for their clothes.

It's better to have an ounce of confidence in yourself than a pound of faith in your neighbor.

MERCHANTS ANGERED OVER HIGH INSURANCE RATES

Want to Know Why an Arbitrary Raise of 25 Per Cent Should Be Levied.

Arguments waxed warm and members of the Merchants' Association in their weekly session last night at 419 Twelfth street, grew indignant over the present high rate of insurance upon business property between Eighth and Twelfth streets on Broadway. Why fire insurance should be raised 25 per cent with the city's present efficient fire department the merchants fail to understand.

F. J. Lee, speaking on the subject, said: "There should certainly be some course taken by the exchange to determine the reason for what I believe is an exorbitant rate charged us by the insurance companies doing business in our city. Our fire department has demonstrated that it is entirely capable of holding its own against conflagrations and I do not see why we should be made to suffer for the disaster in another city. As to the safe wiring of our buildings, we are repeatedly told by inspectors of insurance companies that it does not conform to the demand of the insurance companies, but yet it is satisfactorily passed upon by the inspectors of the city. I do not understand this."

NEVER PROTEST. "I held a conversation with Mr. Babcock, in which he stated that the insurance inspectors have never communicated with him as to their objections."

"The insurance rates have been raised over 25 per cent since the fire in San Francisco and we are given no chance to remonstrate."

Lee's remarks were warmly applauded and he was followed by several other speakers, who gave the subject thorough ventilation.

ONE EXPERIENCE. The underwriters assign the cause of the higher rate to alleged increased dangers that result from alleged poor wiring and lack of precaution taken with high tension and highly charged wires along poles and business buildings. The underwriters declare the risk is greater and hence to safeguard themselves in the same proportion as before a higher rate is arbitrarily placed.

Several other merchants aired their views and then a committee, under motion of Director Schlueter, was appointed to confer with the Pacific Underwriters to enter into all the different reasons for the existing high rate of insurance. The president appointed A. Jones, Wilbur Walker and F. J. Lee to attend to this matter and make a report at the next meeting of the exchange.

INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION. After the disposal of the insurance question the letter from the secretary of the National Civic Federation asking that a delegation of five or six be sent from Oakland to attend their convention in Chicago in November was given much prominence. Industrial issues, trust and corporation questions will be thoroughly debated and discussed at the convention. It was decided that should members of the exchange be in Chicago during November they be appointed delegates from Oakland.

ALLEGED NUISANCE. The exchange also moved that petitions be circulated among the merchants to

HENEY DENIES JURY 'FIXING'

Denounces Statement of Earl Rogers That Juror Strange Favored Prosecution.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney last night issued a statement denouncing the claims of Attorney Earl Rogers to the effect that Juror Strange in the Ford case was responsible for the disagreement of the jury and that in causing a disagreement he deliberately acted as a sort of agent for the prosecution.

In his statement, Heney says regarding the alleged "fixing" of Strange: "If such a thing was done or even attempted it was a far more infamous crime than the bribery of which Mr. Ford is accused. If Mr. Rogers has any evidence whatsoever which tends to establish his charge it is his duty to the people of California, to the profession which he claims to honor, and to his God if he recognizes such a Being, to produce evidence thereof before the Grand Jury, or if he lacks confidence in that body, before a committing magistrate or if he has no confidence in any committing magistrate then before the people of this city, through the medium of the newspapers."

Heney declares that instead of being unusually friendly to the prosecution, as such, Strange is as a matter of fact, a close personal friend of William M. Abbott who was recently indicted for bribery with Thelma Ford.

Heney further declares that Rogers knew Strange had been a juror in the second Glass trial and had been sincerely so desired he could have prevented his sitting as a juror in the Ford trial.

RELiance CLUB'S SHOW PLEASES LARGE CROWD

DALE GARDNER PROVES TOO MUCH FOR YOUNG CHOYNSKI

Clever Denver Scrapper Hands the Ghetto Champion an Awful Walloping In Six Rounds.

BY T. P. MAGILLIGAN.

RELiance CLUB BOUTS--RESULTS

Dunn beat Shields, two rounds, knockout.
Congo Coon, decision over Otto Williams, four rounds.
Mackie won over Horn, four rounds, stopped by referee.
Eddie Miller, decision over M. Angelo, six rounds.
Joe Willis and Tat Reardon, draw, six rounds.
Dale Gardner won over Young Choynski, six rounds.

The merry song and swish of the glove wielded by strong-armed athletes entertained a large crowd of spectators at the Reliance Club's boxing show at the Piedmont Rink last night and when the final bout had terminated the spectators left the building in high approval of the evening's sport.

Last night's bouts furnished one of the best shows yet put on by the Reliance Club, which has pulled off some pretty tobacco mills in the past. There was not a dull moment during the entertainment. The bouts were sent along nicely and there were no long delays between events.

The main event of the evening, the six-round bout between Young Choynski and Dale Gardner, proved quite an interesting battle. Choynski showed a disposition to quit, but Referee Eddie Smith would not stand for the flaccid and made Choynski earn his end of the purse at the cost of a sound thrashing.

In the opening round Gardner walloped Choynski with a gloved right hand through Choynski's mask and section, and that saffron gentler sank to the floor feeling of his ankles to make sure that they were still abiding with him.

"I'm kill, Mr. Smith, I'm dead, Mr. Smith," he yelled, and his seconds took this as a cue and an excuse to shy a towel into the ring.

THE TOWEL SCENE.
Mr. Smith, who is ring wise to all these matters, did not see where Choynski was hidden behind a fighting point and promptly kicked the towel out of the ring. He made a goal kick, slapping Harold Magill in the eye with the linen.

Smith then ordered Choynski to produce Choynski a pained expression, but when he saw that Smith was not of a stomach to house any of the flaccid business he got up and continued to fight.

The show of the "yellow" in Choynski's make up made him very unpopular with the spectators, and they yelled for Gardner to "kill him," "kill him," or otherwise make him and injure the saffron kid.

After he got off the floor Choynski showed plainly that he was not hurt, and he put up a very improved fight. Gardner apparently knew more of the game than Choynski and was his master at all points of the six rounds.

When Gardner and Choynski entered the ring, there was quite a discrepancy between the two. Choynski appeared to be much more muscular than his opponent, but it was apparent by the fighting that Choynski was a flaccid, and his heart wasn't properly built with his splendid physique.

This pair wasted no time in getting at each other. They seemed about as friendly a pair of bullfights with the hydrophobia. Gardner went right after Choynski, and began to pepper him with his every kind of a punch known to medical science.

When Gardner landed a terrific right on Choynski's solar plexus, the latter made a high dive for the canvas. He dived the floor with his back, and for a time it looked as though Referee Smith would have to send for a doctor to get Choynski up off the floor. The Ghetto lad had the alarm clock set for the sound of ten, but Referee Smith would not stand for Choynski's quivering and forced him to continue.

The second and fourth rounds were merely a repetition of the first. Gardner pumiled and punched Choynski at will. Once Gardner took a full-fledged swing at Choynski. It missed the "yellow kid's" chin by about a hair's breadth, and he began to stagger and stagger himself, and yelled, "Gee, I feel that one was up here."

In the fifth round Choynski showed to better advantage. He saw that the referee would not stand for his dogging it, so he started to fight, and he had at least an even break in the fifth round.

In the sixth round Gardner began to sail in again and towards the end of that period he landed a clip on Choynski's chin that shook him from the top of his head to his toenails. After the round was finished the referee raised Gardner's glove in token of victory, and the house cheered the decision to the echo.

Choynski claimed a broken hand after the battle, but if anything was fractured on the part of Choynski it was his courage, and that was not so badly hurt, because Choynski possesses a very meager quantity of this desirable element in a pugilist's make-up.

WILLIS A GAME BOY.
Willis and Reardon put up a very lively bout. For big men these two fellows possess a wonderful amount of science and skill. In the early going Reardon showed to advantage, and landed on Willis almost at will. But Willis always fought back. He used an effective body punch, which stung and shook Reardon badly. At the end of the fifth round it looked as though Reardon's fight, but Willis came winning along in the sixth round, and by winning this round all the way he evened matters up, and Eddie Smith's draw decision was a popular one.

Reardon seemed to be the more scientific of the pair, but he does not appear to be as rugged as Willis. In a longer fight it was the opinion of the flaccid experts that Willis would be the victor.

The show opened with a four-round bout between two chicken weights. Shields and Dunn were the boys to lift the curtain. The Congo Coon, who was accurate of aim, and no gunner's school would slip them medals for skill at marksmanship, but toward the middle of the second round Dunn saw an opening as big as the Pacific ocean and rammed Shields with a right-hand hammer that sent him to the floor. It was a neat little package that Dunn delivered on the point of Shields' chin. It only weighed five ounces and was as accurate as the latest approved kind, but it did the business and the Congo Coon was shot to the canvas as though one of the gunboats had dropped a nitro-glycerin shell into his lap.

The Gold Dust Twins performed in the second preliminary. Referee Smith introduced them as "Two Little Willys," a pair of the darkest Africa, and the "Congo Coon, champion of the Jungle." Willis is so black that you would not be able to see him on the street of a large luscious chocolate drop, but he knows a bit about fighting and won the decision.

Williams showed a new punch. He battered the Congo Coon on the top of the head every time he felt into a clinch. This head blow is a pin, and we would advise any fighter who stands up against the champion of Darkest Africa to put a boxing glove on his nut. The Congo Coon rammed Williams about the ring with a right hand, and the referee was there with the come-back and stuck it out gamely. The Congo Coon got a well-earned decision.

Eddie Miller made a "one da monk" out of Michael Angelo. Angelo fights like a turtle. He covers his head with his gloves and assumes a crouch that brings him so close to the floor that he wouldn't get badly hurt if he hit the resin.

Miller is a shifty kid. He solved the crouch and got through Angelo's guard at will. He had the spuchetti enter's nose welling blood from the first round and when Angelo slipped back to his corner at the end of this period he had the appearance of a dish of macaroni and meat sauce.

Miller had the better of every round, and gave to Angelo an unmerciful punishment. Eddie's a very clever lad with a fair punch, and if he follows the same should develop into a fairer of millman.

OTTO HORN PROVED A DOUBT THAT HE WAS NOT HURT, AND HE PUT UP A VERY IMPROVED FIGHT. GARDNER APPARENTLY KNEW MORE OF THE GAME THAN CHOYNSKI AND WAS HIS MASTER AT ALL POINTS OF THE SIX ROUNDS.

When Gardner and Choynski entered the ring, there was quite a discrepancy between the two. Choynski appeared to be much more muscular than his opponent, but it was apparent by the fighting that Choynski was a flaccid, and his heart wasn't properly built with his splendid physique.

This pair wasted no time in getting at each other. They seemed about as friendly a pair of bullfights with the hydrophobia. Gardner went right after Choynski, and began to pepper him with his every kind of a punch known to medical science.

When Gardner landed a terrific right on Choynski's solar plexus, the latter made a high dive for the canvas. He dived the floor with his back, and for a time it looked as though Referee Smith would have to send for a doctor to get Choynski up off the floor. The Ghetto lad had the alarm clock set for the sound of ten, but Referee Smith would not stand for Choynski's quivering and forced him to continue.

Interesting Notes About Racing Matter
By LEE DEMIER

GOSSIP

Bookmaker Joe Yager from recent reports had gone back in the betting to the tune of several thousand dollars, made good through his betting commission. The reason for his delay in paying his markers is attributed to illness. During the Sheephead meeting he got his start by winning $40,000 on Blue Book, a horse that will be seen at Williams Park this winter.

Jockey McClain, who was the star rider at Seattle and Spokane, died at Lewiston, Idaho, yesterday, from injuries received as a result of a fall trying to pilot a winner to victory.

Sachet has been fired.
Col. White is now a boarder in Doc Rowell's barn.

Bookmaker Henry Wordt will be connected with Johnny Lyons' book this winter.

Bookmaker Charles Zacharis is a fresh arrival from New York.

The following stables are making arrangements to ship from New York and the Middle West. Trainer James Blute, Jr., owns Sam Hildreth, one colt and Blakey, one colt. R. L. Thomas, two colts; Billie Oliver and Pat Saeed, one colt, and Phil Chalm, one colt.

Billie Walsh, the village blacksmith, is driving old Doubt to a buggy. He said he paid $100 for the horse, and his wife wouldn't take $500 for him.

"Skelly" owner of that good black mare, Proof Press, is a fresh arrival from Spokane. He said his mare was a real bet on the northern circuit.

All bookmakers at Belmont Park are now prohibited from sending representatives into the paddock to interview trainers and owners before the running of a race. The stewards declare the rule was passed for the best interest of good class racing.

Flash--The Latonia meeting has been extended until November 1.

Bookmaker Hugh Jones is a late arrival from New York, via Los Angeles.

Kistnermeyer Brothers' Master Cal will be pointed for the Thornton Stakes, providing he stands.

Official--Lyman Davis will not serve as secretary or in any capacity for the new race track now being built at Arcadia.

Capt. Hackett is taking in the races at Belmont Park.

The Italian jockey, Lingi Masmada, got a bad fall in a race at Belmont Park recently.

It has been officially announced that the purses and stakes at Belmont Park will be increased next year.

Oxford, who has been a very sick horse, has passed the crisis in his illness and will recover.

Owner and Trainer Dr. H. E. Rowell arrived yesterday with the horses of President Thomas H. Williams and are now quartered in Burns & Waterhouse's beautiful, inclosure at Williams Park.

"Take it from me," said the genial horseman, "the coming racing season at Williams Park will be the greatest ever seen in California."

Trainer Dave Henry writes from Latonia that he will be in the city for the horses at the latter part of this month.

Green B. Morris, who is at present racing a small but smart string at Latonia, will arrive in time for the opening of the season.

The horses at Williams Park are going along at a two-minute clip.

Owner and Trainer Carmel Ferguson, the polished young Kentuckian, is on his way, that is if he can make it, about 7 o'clock in the morning.

A large number of eastern turkeys made their way to the Sausalito rooms yesterday.

The reports that Red Walker was notified not to ship to Emeryville is unfounded. The noted Canadian owner and trainer, with well balanced string, will be here as usual.

Barney Schreiner's Deutschland will meet the cream of the handicap division at Latonia today.

H. K. Knapp, of the State Racing Commission, says that in all probability there will be no decision for a month by the Court of Appeals on the Empire City matter.

Arthur McKnight, who acceptably filled the post of starter at Seattle during the recent meeting, has been engaged with his two assistants to do the starting on the Texas circuit.

Mark Lordan, a bookmaker at work in the Belmont Park enclosure, fell to the floor while making up his odds for the fourth race at Belmont the other day and was conveyed to his home after an examination by the track physician, Dr. Voorhes.

Judge Hopper, who is presiding at Latonia will take the next boat rather for the coast about November 1st.

Cashier Tom Cook said yesterday that Bookie Joe Herman will be on hand when the bell rings.

Four horses, the property of G. W. Griffin, arrived from Woodland yesterday.

Firestone, Walter Miller, Perjuico, Raula and Creation, in charge of Trainer Dr. H. Rowell, arrived from New York yesterday. In the same car were Borghesi and San Alviso, the property of Rudolph Spieckels.

Rustle, a two-year-old filly by Russell, took Center Shot into camp at Latonia yesterday.

"Deple" Moore, the handicapper, picked the last five winners on the last day of the Spokane meeting.

The Barbarians will journey to Stanford to meet the picks of the "varisty," and the California players will entertain the Nevada University boys who have been carefully prepared by Coach Cameron.

The "Barbs" will take their strongest line-up of the season to Palo Alto, the back division especially showed a bold front on paper.

The reappearance of Captain Elliott in the team will be welcome to the Stanford "rooters," as they have not as yet had an opportunity of seeing him play.

Oliver Snodgrass will also make the trip with the Barbarians, who will have the benefit of his speed at wing three-quarters. This clever athlete has the makings of a prolific scorer and with his experience in the other games, should be valuable both as an aggressive and defensive player.

Buckingham, the best forward of the earlier contexts, is also back in the team and will play behind the scrummers, where his services are most needed, it being conceded by all Rugby judges that the Barbarians' front line should be left intact.

The Stanford fifteen are making efforts to put up a bold front in the scrum on this occasion, this being their weakest spot, and the back lines are considerably more advanced in the fine points of the game than in their first meeting.

As the Barbarians have abolished the old game and taken up Rugby, this game will be the most important of the American style of football played in this part. Testing teams have been in tense rivals for football honors during the last ten years in the college town, and will be relied on to supply the public demand for high class American football.

Last year the two teams met on the Berrymann field, and before one of the largest crowds at a local athletic gathering the scenic team won by a score of 5 to 0.

In the past the managers of the two teams have succeeded in gathering together players of the very highest class, and the games between the two teams afforded the public the only opportunity of seeing the old-time stars in action. This year they will make a special effort to get together all-star teams and players of the very first grade, known all over the State for their prowess on the gridiron, will be included in the line-up. It is probable that the teams will be mostly composed of former college players, together with old high school and club stars.

The Zingz ball team would like to hear from managers of some fast amateur teams, country teams preferred. Open date next Sunday. Address F. W. Peck, 1421 Park Street. Phone Alameda 669.

JACK JOHNSON READY TO TRAIN FOR FIREMAN FLYNN

Big Colored Man Will Do His Prepping Stunt at Millits for Important Battle--Gossip.

By EDDIE SMITH.

Cute "All Arthur" Johnson, that handsome colored gentleman, who has always been known for his modesty and quiet unassuming manner (Great joke, that was finally signed up with Jim Flynn, the fighting fireman from Colorado. The only change in the original agreement is the changing of the date from October 26 to November 2, Johnson claiming that he wanted more time to get ready for the rough and ready fight from the Rockies. The big smoke will cast his dark shadow over Colma for the remainder of the time and will have with him as a sparring partner another big smoke in the person of Denver Ed Martin.

To the fan who is on the lookout for some fast and clever boxing here is an opportunity not to be overlooked, when these big blacks who represent the Clevel division of the heavyweights get together there should be all kinds of snappy sparring.

As usual Johnson is having trouble with some manager that he owes money to. Gentle reader, if you had the money this colored gentleman owes all over this country and had the money of him, you would be in a position where you could lay aside your tools and tabs work for the remainder of your life.

Johnson has had more managers and bailed more people than any fighter has had a chance to bail out. It is almost a cliché but it is not true that he is a clown, however, for Sam has had a deal of experience in the managerial line and knows just how to handle men of Johnson's character.

To think of his beating Zeke Abrams, the well-known pool player, who has been one of the best of the above variety, the big thing is how easily he can do the trick. Amateur managers of fighters and newbies take notice--you are not the only easy things that Mr. Johnson has run against.

M'CARTHY, RYAN, TAYLOR, AND LANGDON SPEAK TO MANY ON POLITICAL PROBLEMS

ALLEGES PLOT AGAINST TOILER

SAN FRANCISCO Oct. 15.—P. H. McCarthy and other nominees on the Union Labor ticket addressed three meetings last night, one at Twenty-eighth and Church streets at Lyra Hall (McCarthy's home district), the second at Maennerbund Hall, Potrero avenue and Twenty-fourth street, and the third at Hamilton Hall Geary and Steiner streets.

McCarthy said the issue was whether a few millionaires should control and rehabilitate their fortunes at the expense of the wage-earners or whether the plain people, through the Labor Union party, should control the municipal government.

Everywhere these men said McCarthy, have scattered the report that unless we elect a Mayor who is suitable to Wall Street there will be a boycott on San Francisco.

Let me say that no city has been more prosperous and nowhere has there been a city of such success as San Francisco.

McCarthy said the bankers were in a scheme with Patrick Calhoun to drive out the agitators. Calhoun last April he declared war on the bankers and asked them to stand with him to destroy the unions. The bankers agreed to do the very work he suggested and the alleged scarcity of money is a part of the conspiracy.

McCarthy said he had no fear of the result.

SAYS HE FIGHTS FOR WORKMEN

SAN FRANCISCO Oct. 15.—Daniel A. Ryan, the Republican nominee for Mayor, addressed two meetings last night at Dolores Hall.

He said in part:

I am the Republican nominee, but I am not backed by a Republican newspaper. Since the Republican party of San Francisco cut away from the corporations we have not the backing of the press but I am sure we have the indorsement of the people. The issue of the day is San Francisco. We cannot have prosperity here unless we wipe out class prejudice.

Later in the evening Ryan addressed a gathering at Lafayette Hall, on Stockton street. The nominee for Mayor was introduced by Dr. Plines who said Ryan was making a fight for the poor man that there was no corruptionist or corporation coin in his canvass.

NO MAN'S MAN DECLARES MAYOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—An audience, which filled the Mission street rink gathered last night to greet Mayor Taylor, District Attorney Langdon and other representatives of the Democratic and Good Government fusion ticket.

Walter Macarthur, editor of the Coast Seaman's Journal, delivered an address in which he called upon organized labor to eliminate politics and vote for a government that will not interfere with union labor but allow it to work out its own destiny.

District Attorney Langdon made an earnest appeal for a city government that will assist not hinder, the prosecution of criminals both high and low.

Dr. Taylor said in part:

The incumbent is no man's man, but his own man working for harmony, for the happiness of every class. And I want it so understood that there can be no mistake about it that he is nobody's servant but the people's and is doing things according to his best judgment allowing no man's judgment to swerve him from what he thinks is right and just. My nomination was unsolicited and I made no pledges or promises of any kind.

CROWDS FILL ST. MARY'S

Church Fair Brings Many People From Both Sides of the Bay.

St. Mary's hall was again crowded last evening the second night of St. Mary's Church fair. Generous help came from both sides of the bay and a visit to the affair for the purpose of helping to swell the fund that is being raised to lessen the church debt and to pay for improvements that are sadly needed for the impossible edifice.

It was at home night for the Children of Mary booth and a very clever program had been arranged for the occasion. Miss Mae O'Connor rendered a splendid piano solo. Miss Ella Blens showed her dramatic ability in a recitation which was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Marie Nichols. The League of the Cross (nuns) were represented by Messrs. Fitzsimmons and Kearney in a comedy specialty.

The Rosary booth was beautifully decorated and those who are assisting St. Mary's in making it popular are Mrs. J. H. Haggerty, Miss May Creek, Miss Kate Toland, Mrs. J. Quinn, Mrs. J. Connors, Mrs. E. Galvin, Mrs. J. R. Kelley, Mrs. Grace Wright, Miss M. A. Gallagher, Miss M. Troy, Miss Heaney, Messrs. E. Calviti, T. J. Delehanty, James Daly, P. McBrien and J. R. Kelley.

Tonight will be at home day for the good women who have charge of the Catholic Ladies Aid Society booth. This women of the last mentioned booth expect great returns for their evening's work as they feel sure that all their friends will select this time as a good occasion to pay a visit to the fair. A splendid program of entertainment has been prepared and every one is assured of being made welcome and of spending a pleasant evening besides assisting in a charity work.

MRS. BUTTERS OBEYED LAW

Customs Official Declares That Society Woman Acted Within Her Rights

United States Customs Service Port of San Francisco Cal October 15 1907.

To the Editor of THE TRIBUNE: People of good sense and of good character have been offended by the ignorance and vulgarity shown by many newspapers in discussing the case of Mrs. Butters and her action in relation to her baggage brought from Europe. The treasury department on July 31 issued a notice to the effect that a lady, a citizen of this country from the old sailing time of the right under the law. This notice was for the purpose of customs administration passengers are divided into two classes viz. First, residents of the United States and second, residents of the foreign world.

The division of passengers into non-residents and residents in no way affects citizenship.

The non-residents are (a) actual residents of other countries, (b) persons who have been abroad with a first-class ticket for one year or more, (c) persons who have been abroad for two years with or without a first-class ticket, (d) persons who elect to declare as non-residents.

There is no limitation as to the value of articles free of duty brought in by persons electing as non-residents provided such articles are in the nature of wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects actually accompanying the passenger and necessary for his or her wear and use for the purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience and are not intended for other persons or for sale.

Upon application to the customs officer in charge of the dock baggage intended for delivery at ports in the United States other than the port of arrival and express companies' representatives are to be found on the pier.

WORKING UNUSUAL.

It will be observed by the foregoing that Mrs. Butters was clearly within her legal rights in declaring her baggage as a non-resident and that she was clearly within her rights in avoiding examination of it in New York or landing port and having it transferred to San Francisco the port of her final destination. She was clearly obedient to the law and there was nothing unusual or questionable in calling or newspaper comment to what she did. It is to be regretted that having obeyed the laws of her country the lady should have been subjected to malicious newspaper comment.

JOHN P. IRISH
Naval Officer of Customs.

OUT OF SIGHT.

"Out of sight, out of mind" is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore tooth or wound that has been treated with Buckle's Arnica Salve. It is out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by Osgood Bros. druggists, Seventh and Broadway and Twelfth and Washington streets.

When your liver is inactive, when you are dull and groggy by day and restless at night, take Lash's Bitters.

His Cigar Doesn't Taste Right

And Yet It Is the Same He Was Smoking With So Much Relish After Dinner Last Night. Out of the Very Same Box, Too.

It isn't the cigar—it's the stomach.

Every smoker has experienced this peculiar condition of the stomach and liver the result usually of imperfect digestion of food. And he knows it usually put on the cigar and not when it belongs.

Such men are usually high class hard workers men living under high pressure and are haggard and it doesn't take a great deal to disorder the stomach or render the liver torpid.

There should make it a practice to use some reliable remedy to remedy this. St. Mary's Digestive Tablets that will aid nature and not force it and will take care of the sudden attacks of acute indigestion.

The use of these tablets is not to be confused with the patent medicine habit. St. Mary's Digestive Tablets are not a patent medicine but are composed of the very elements which nature provides the healthy stomach to do the work of digesting a solid substance. In the stomach there are acids in their proper action. These acids are vital in their nature and the food is not digested and the food is not digested. No matter how good the stomach may be, it will not digest the food if the acid is not present. St. Mary's Digestive Tablets digest food while the stomach is at rest and after the food is digested the food is sent to the stomach.

St. Mary's Digestive Tablets are sold in their original package. No matter how good the stomach may be, it will not digest the food if the acid is not present. St. Mary's Digestive Tablets digest food while the stomach is at rest and after the food is digested the food is sent to the stomach.

WOMEN'S FOOTWEAR

"We have all the staple styles—all the smart new novelties—all the late fads and fancies.

We now have the largest shoe store for women on the coast. We naturally take a great pride in this fact. But we take vastly more in knowing that it was the steadily increasing patronage you are voluntarily giving us that compelled us to enlarge. A business doesn't grow without reason. If we didn't carry the right shoes—if we didn't sell them at the right prices—if we didn't try to please you—we wouldn't have needed a larger store. WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR SOROBIS SHOES
